On: A young, new architect or designer whose work is pushing the boundaries of good design

Alan Abraham
Abraham John Architects, Mumbai

Vo Trong Nghia Architects is a young leading architectural practice in Vietnam founded in 2006. By experimenting with light, wind and water, and by using natural and local materials, Vo Trong Nghia employs a contemporary design vocabulary to explore new ways to create green architecture, whilst maintaining the essence of Asian architectural expression.

Bipratip Dhar
Epsilon Architecture Interior, Kolkata

I came across an Oakland-based firm called MATSYS sometime back and have been following their work ever since. It continues to amaze me every time I see it. The emergence of organic forms arising out of a relationship between architecture, biology, engineering and technology is awe-inspiring. Architect Andrew Kudless's interdisciplinary approach to find design solutions is emphatically pushing the boundaries of great design.

Tanushree Gulati
M:OFA Studio, New Delhi

I would pick New Delhi-based Ruchika Grover of Odyssey. She is a young product designer who works extensively with stone. For me a passion towards innovation really sets a designer apart. It shows a thinking, which lies at the core of creation, taking it to the next level. It shows a journey and an extreme dedication towards one's craft.
